

Summer is on its way, and here is what you need to know now, so that you can properly protect your skin from sun damage.

- The American Academy of Dermatology recommends using an SPF 30. An SPF 50 or higher blocks a little more UVB rays (99 versus 97 percent).
- Never apply less than a teaspoon of sunscreen to your face. Good rule: Always apply at least 30 minutes before you go in the sun.
- An SPF 15 moisturizer and an SPF 30 sunscreen do not add up to an SPF 45.
- Tanning Beds are awful for your skin...one burn in a tanning bed equals 10 to 12 sunburns.
- Be sure to apply sunscreen every couple of hours if you plan on being outside for a long period of time. One application just isn't enough!

Save the date- As of May 1st, The American Society of Dermatologic Surgery is offering complimentary skin exams. Go to www.aad.org to find a participating doctor near you or ask us for a referral. Pick up your body map to track your moles at your next appointment. Here's to healthy skin!
