

Say goodbye to 2015 and those bad skin care habits that are keeping you from putting your best face forward. And say hello to 2016 with a new found love for your skin again. Below is a list of our top 4 bad habits to break for the New Year.

1. Stop touching your face

Trying to self-treat blemishes or other imperfections on your face can mostly lead to making the problem worse. Stay away from facial extractors available in your local drugstore, and leave it to a professional.

2. Appointments

For healthy skin, be sure to keep appointments with your aesthetician, dermatologist, or doctor. And don't forget to make an appointment for a yearly mole check.

3. Stop sleeping with your makeup on

Once you get in the habit of cleansing your skin before bedtime, it will become routine and your skin will thank you!

4. Sunscreen

Levels of SPF can be found in almost any beauty product these days, so there really aren't any excuses on why you are skipping this life saving step.

Best wishes for the New Year and a new improved you!
