Photo Rejuvenation (IPL)

As the baby boomer generation continues to age, the popularity of aesthetic procedures that aim to turn back the clock continues to skyrocket. Brown spots, broken capillaries and other fallout from photo aging are easy targets for laser systems that use broadband light to repair these defects through a process called photo rejuvenation. Additionally, facial wrinkles can now be treated non-ablatively, contributing to a more youthful appearance. Using relatively low-energy, short-pulse broadband light, imperfections such as erythema of rosacea, superficial telangiectasia, dyschromia, age spots and other discolored signs of photo aging can be gently heated and eliminated, replaced by newer, younger looking skin.

Skinetics Sun Protection: How to protect your skin.

Summer is on its way, and here is what you need to know now, so that you can properly protect your skin from sun damage.

- The American Academy of Dermatology recommends using an SPF 30. An SPF 50 or higher blocks a little more UVB rays (99 versus 97 percent).
- Never apply less than a teaspoon of sunscreen to your face. Good rule: Always apply at least 30 minutes before you go in the sun.
- An SPF 15 moisturizer and an SPF 30 sunscreen do not add up to an SPF 45.
- Tanning Beds are awful for your skin...one burn in a tanning bed equals 10 to 12 sunburns.
- Be sure to apply sunscreen every couple of hours if you plan on being outside for a long period of time. One application just isn't enough!

Save the date and money! As of May 1st, The American Society of Dermatologic Surgery is offering complimentary skin exams. Go to www.aad.org to find a participating doctor near you or ask us for a referral. Here's to healthy skin!
